

New Museum Announces Participants for 2012 Triennial

The New Museum has announced the names of thirty-four artists, artist groups, and temporary collectives—making for over fifty participants—for its second museum triennial, “The Ungovernables.” Curated by Eungie Joo, Keith Haring director and curator of education and public programs at the New Museum, the show takes its inspiration from the concept of “‘ungovernability’ and its transformation from a pejorative term used to describe unruly ‘natives’ to a strategy of civil disobedience and self-determination,” according to the museum in a press release. The museum adds that the triennial is intended to address “the urgencies of a generation who came of age after the independence and revolutionary movements of the 1960s and ’70s.” Many of the artists have never exhibited before in the United States, and, in conjunction with the show’s theme, were born between the mid-’70s and mid-’80s. The participating artists are as follows:
